

GROUP AGREEMENT TEMPLATE

A group agreement is a useful document to help the team decide what their expectations are for their own and each other's behaviour as a member of the representative team. It is best completed at the one of the first meetings or a training session for the whole team.

This process helps people think about how they act in their role and can be referred to in the event that problems arise.

Once completed, the group agreement should be available to everyone in the team, perhaps on the table at the start of meetings or by giving everyone a copy.

This process could also include creating a Safe Space Agreement as well.
